Message to Parents

FIGHT INFANTILE PARALYSIS

WHAT TO DO IF POLIO COMES YOUR WAY

Keep children with their own friends. Keep them away from people they have not been with right along, especially in close, daily living. Many people have polio infection without showing signs of sickness. Without knowing it, they can pass the infection on to others

Try not to get over-tired by work, hard play or travel. If you already have the polio infection in your body, being very tired may bring on serious polio

Keep from getting chilled. Don't bathe or swim too long in cold water Take off wet clothes at once. Chilling can lessen your body's protection against polio

Keep clean. Wash hands carefully before eating and always after using the toilet. Hands may carry polio infection into the body through the mouth Also keep food clean and covered.

WATCH FOR EARLY SIGNS OF SICKNESS

Polio starts in different ways—with headache, sore throat, upset stomach or fever Persons coming down with polio may also feel nervous, cross or dizzy They may have trouble in swallowing or breathing. Often there is a stiff neck and back.

ACT QUICKLY—CALL YOUR DOCTOR AT ONCE

Until he comes, keep the patient quiet and in bed, away from others.

"WELL Crawford, what's new?" Fauntleroy Fox asked Crow as he met him on the bus one morning.

"Oh nothing much," came the reply, "except that I have just become sole owner of the Crawford Crow Cash and Carry Laundry!"

"Doing well?" asked Fox, gritting his teeth.

"Oh, very well indeed," Crow smiled. "Lots of profit in that business. I expect to be a rich man pretty soon, a rich man!"

Fauntleroy got off the bus at his favorite hang-out, Pinball Alley. He waved goodbye to Crawford as the bus roared off, and then he entered his hang-out and dropped a penny into the nearest pinball machine.

"What am I wasting my money like this for . . ." thought Fox, as he pressed a lever and sent a pinball zooming into a miniature bowling alley. "I have lots of dough saved up. Now's the time to invest it wisely, before Pinball Alley eats it all up."

And right then, as he thought about Crow's success, Fauntleroy had an idea! "WHOOPEE!" he shouted, and ran out the door.

It wasn't long before a new enterprise moved into the office building across the street from the Crawford Crow Cash and Carry Laundry. The new place was a WASHOMAT! It was a modern chrome-plated room full of automatic washing machines . . . and the sole owner was . . . . FAUNTLEROY FOX!

SAVE MONEY—said a neon sign over the doorway—USE THE WASHOMAT—SAVE MONEY—SAVE MONEY—SAVE MONEY—WASHOMAT.

The people of the neighborhood just couldn't resist it. They flocked to the washomat, and they saved their money.

Across the street, staring out at the crowded washomat, sat Crawford Crow, wringing his hands in anguish. His cash and carry laundry, which had been doing so well before, was completely empty now. His business was ruined. Ruined by Fauntleroy Fox!

"By golly, I'll get even with that Fox!" Crow vowed to himself. "I'll show him he can't make a monkey out of ME! No SIR!"

Several days later a fat lady stomped up to Fox as he sat happily behind his desk in the washomat. Her face was full of anger as she threw a bundle of clothes down before him.

"LOOK AT THIS!" she screeched. "MY CLOTHES ARE ALL PURPLE!"

Fauntleroy's jaw dropped. "I—I don't understand!"

The customer dragged him over to the washing machine. "I put my bundle in there," she raged. "And when I removed it a half-hour later, THIS MESS is what I found!" She pointed to the mountain of deep purple stuff beside her.

Fox scratched his head and said, "It's a mystery to me, madam," and apologizing at great length, he finally calmed her down by saying, "Here. Here's your money back

. . . and here's more money to cover the damage done by my broken machine."

She left, Fox put an "OUT OF ORDER" sign on that particular machine, and things settled back to normal. BUT, the next day:

"Mr. Fox, Mr. Fox, come over here!" a female voice yelled.

Hurrying to the customer's machine, Fauntleroy discovered that all the sheets and towels she'd been washing had turned BLACK!

"This is an outrage!" she shouted. "You pay for this damage, Fox, or I'll have you thrown in jail!"

"Okay, okay," nodded Fauntleroy dismally, as he rang open his cash register.

And it kept right on happening! Fox's mind got so upset and bewildered that he decided he was going out of his mind!

"The day before yesterday everything came out of the machines BRIGHT RED! And yesterday seven customers complained of DIRTY BROWN results! Today lots of clothes turned CHARTREUSE as they were being washed! WHAT ON EARTH IS GOING ON!"

He paced up and down his bedroom, up and down, up and down.

"If it happens again tomorrow," he decided, "I'm through!"

The next day, as Fauntleroy watched with misery and confusion turning to tears in his eyes, his expensive washomat machines gave forth with muddy grey clothes and towels and sheets. And the next day, the washomat was closed.

"OUT OF BUSINESS" said the sign above the door.

Across the street the housewives were starting already to trickle in, shoving their bundles of dirty laundry across the counter at Crawford Crow.

"That sure was a dirty deal you got at that washomat," he told each one. "The old-fashioned ways are the best. You don't have to worry when you do business with Crawford Crow!"

Two weeks later, Crow was humming to himself as he counted his money. Suddenly he felt a prick on his ear lobe!

"OUCH!" he squealed.

And immediately a voice spoke right into his ear, "Crow, you owe the Glenn Gremlin Company $100 for that job. I sent you the bill. You haven't paid up."

"Is that you, Glenn?" Crow asked. 'Leggo of my ear. Get down!"

The tiny gremlin jumped down on the counter then. He was just a half-inch tall, tiny but HOPPING MAD!

"Listen bud," Glenn Gremlin said, "You hired my company to enter those laundromat machines and ruin everything with dye. We did. Now, the bargain's done, where's our money?"

"Ha ha ha," Crawford laughed. "Are you kidding? What would ya do with a dime. It'd be too big and heavy for one of you guys to carry, even! Me give you $100! Ha ha ha! Get outa here, squirt, before I squash you under my thumb!"

That afternoon Fauntleroy Fox felt something crawl out of his pocket as he was listlessly putting his very last penny into a pinball machine. It was Glenn Gremlin! And a short while later, Fox had been told the whole story.

"Let's cooperate," said Gremlin. "So Crow can't operate!"

So saying, Glenn squeezed himself into the pinball machine and WHANG! As Fauntleroy pressed the lever, he hit the JACKPOT! The money poured out!

"There!" said Gremlin. "I fixed that! Now you have enough money to go buy Crawford out of business and open up your nice clean washomat again!"

Together the two friends arrived at Crow's Cash and Carry Laundry. He ignored them . . . but . . . suddenly he jumped high in the air!

"OUCH!" he screeched.

"Here's money to buy you out of business," said Fauntleroy.

"NO—" Crow began, but he ended with another "OUCH!" And when Glenn Gremlin crawled inside his shoe and jabbed his big toe with a pin, Crawford gave up!

"All right, all right," he said, running out the door, "take the business! It's yours!"

Glenn Gremlin winked wisely at Fox, who was smiling happily. Then the tiny fellow disappeared into the drug store next door and slid down a straw where he devoured Crawford's strawberry soda!
